

Kelly McCarty

Biographical Information

Basketball Club International is thrilled to welcome former basketball pro Kelly McCarty to their board of directors. His unique experience as an international player will benefit BCI Loop and other player-driven program components, along with the mission and vision of the BCI organization.

Originally from Chicago, this 6'7" and 235 lb. guard-forward led his team at the University of Southern Mississippi in scoring and rebounding during his senior year, 1997-98. After a brief time with the Denver Nuggets, Kelly played in Israel for five seasons and was voted Finals MVP in 2003-04. Then, he moved to Dynamo Saint Petersburg, a Russian Superleague A club, where he helped his team win the FIBA Europe League Championship and was elected the Final Four MVP. He spent the rest of his basketball career playing in Russia.

Kelly currently trains 65-70 basketball player clients, from youth to pro-level, through his company, Sharing and Caring for Kids, LLC at the UWIN training facility in Huntsville, AL. Kelly and his wife, Felicia, also serve as leaders at Wonder Works, the children's department of the Rock Family Worship Center. Married for 13 years, the couple has lived in Huntsville for the same period, and has been blessed with two children: Eboni, 10, and Chase, 8.

He told us, "I am proud to say God is our rock. I simply want to be the man that He has called me to be as a husband, father, brother in the Lord, and as a basketball player on and off the court."
