

Garrett Temple

Biographical Information

Garrett Bartholomew Temple (born May 8, 1986) is an American professional basketball player for the Chicago Bulls of the NBA.

He played college basketball for Louisiana State University from 2005 until 2009. In his senior season, he became LSU's all-time leader in minutes played (4,432). He earned All-SEC Defensive team honors, as well as being named to the coaches' All-SEC second team. In 35 games, he averaged 7.1 points, 4.5 rebounds, 3.8 assists and 1.7 steals per game.

NBA player DeMarcus Cousins says of the ten-year NBA veteran, "I don't even give Garrett a position, He's just a hard-nosed worker. Anything you ask him to do, he's going to do it. He's doing the dirty work. He's doing whatever is needed for the team and you can't help but to appreciate guys like that."
